Cheap Holidays Travel at Goa

Goa is often called 'The Jewel of India' because the natives -- Goans -- enjoy life to the fullest without getting tense about the unfavorable repercussions. Needless to say 'Siesta' is an important part of life in Goa. Legendary Lata Mangeshkar is from Goa just like the classical singer Kishori Amonkar and the pop singer Remo Fernandes. There is a vast representation of the gods and goddesses of the Hindu pantheon, which testifies to the catholicity of the people's beliefs as well as their mutual tolerance. Indeed, Goa is loved for this rare quality which one feels imperceptibly on even a short visit.

Calangute is a great beach. It is one of the most famous and crowded holiday spots. If you are looking for cheap holidays in Goa with music, dance, chitter-chatter of countless people around you then Calangute is the place for you. The main road which leads straight to the beach is full of Kashmiri-run handicraft boutiques and Tibetan stalls selling Himalayan curios and jewelry. The high quality textiles from Rajasthan, Gujarat and Karnataka can be bought from here. Anjuna is another spot known for its infamous full moon parties and for its flea market. Baga is actually an extension of Calangute beach but it is secluded enough to gain popularity among the sunbathers.

Your Goa holidays are incomplete if you miss out being a part of the Christmas Carnival. It does not matter whether one enjoys or sees others enjoying. There is enthusiasm and happiness all around. Floats depicting popular lullabies and nursery rhymes make a whimsical and colorful sight on the streets. The three-day festival primarily celebrated by Christians, has absorbed Hindu tradition-bound revelry and western dance forms, and stimulated by the artistry of the Goan genius turned into a pageantry of singular effervescence. Shopping in the famous traditional markets of the Mapusa and Anjuna area is a fascinating experience. These markets are a mirror of Goa's ethnic culture and provide a glimpse of the typical Goan way of doing business. The Friday Market at Mapusa, where stalls sell everything from curios and old coins to dried fish and spices.

India travel (www.t2india.com) is the most competitive site which takes care of cheap holidays in Goa. Anyone can make reservations to hotels in Goa through the site and can get the entire itinerary for the trip. India hotels you facilitate a Cheap Holidays Goa at the click of a button.
